A VIVA VOCE VOTE

Miners Shortly Before Noon Accepted the Arbitration Proposition.

The Strike Was Declared Off and the Men Will Return to Work Thursday.

MUCH GLADNESS SHOWN

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 21.—The mine workers' convention this morning accepted the arbitration proposition and declared the strike off, agreeing to return to work Thursday morning. The resolution was adopted at 11:55 by a viva voce vote. Great cheers greeted the announcement of the result.

President Mitchell announced that he had received a telegram from President Roosevelt that he would call a meeting of the arbitration committee immediately after favorable action of the convention. President Mitchell said he had reason to believe that the findings of the convention would be announced within one month from the time of the convention. It was decided that all men needed to place mines in condition can return to work at once, and the convention adjourned sine die.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 21.—Mitchell and Wilson were elected permanent president and secretary respectively yesterday afternoon at the miners' convention. There are 663 delegates present, who will cast 264 votes.

Every delegate whose opinion was sought felt that the convention would do whatever their national leader advised. There was a general cheerfulness in the faces of the men, which was reflected in the demeanor of the citizens of this prosperous city, in and near which 50,000 of the strikers live and even the fine, clear weather seemed to suggest peace and arbitration.

When the reading of the reports was concluded it was suggested that the delegates be entertained by songs. This was adopted, and for a brief time the big convention was turned into a social meeting. "Give three cheers for Mitchell, for the strike that we have won," was sung by a Wilkesbarre delegate and it swept the convention with enthusiasm. The only colored delegate present was called on for a song or a speech and he responded with a typical Southern negro song. For awhile longer the singing was kept up, the men calling for songs from one another, principally the Welshmen, who have reputations as sweet singers.

The surprise of the convention was the decision to admit newspaper men to all the sessions, open or executive, when even union miners eagerly waiting by the hundred out on the street could not get into the theater. Twice the newspaper men won a big victory by big majorities. First, when a petition from them asking to be allowed to remain, a motion to grant the request was carried, and later when a motion was made to reconsider the first vote to admit. The pleas which won were that the reporters represented the people, that public opinion had helped the strikers and that the best way to get an accurate report of this convention of immediate and national import was to let the press representatives stay there on the spot. Even the suggestion of a press committee of delegates to give the news to the correspondents was turned down by the convention.

WHEN BABY IS COMING USE Mother's Friend.

Woman's greatest dream of beauty and glory is when nature has chosen her to become a mother. Every faculty is keenly alert and her nature the finest as she foresees the joy, the ambition, the success and the life-long satisfaction coming, coming nearer, day by day, in the dear and innocent being so soon to see light, and the very uncertainty whether she shall see a sweet girl face or a brave boy face beside her on the pillow, adds zest to her expectancy. Then, if ever, she should take care of her physical, mental and moral health.

MOTHER'S FRIEND applied externally throughout pregnancy will relieve the pain of parturition, and no mother and child can fail to be healthy, hearty, strong, clear-complexioned, pure blooded, calm nerved and cheerful in disposition, who are mutually influenced for months by the continued use of Mother's Friend.

DO YOU WANT TO YAWN?

Feel cold shiverings, aching in the bones, lack of energy, headache, and great depression? These symptoms may be followed by violent headache, high fever, extreme nervousness, a condition known as malaria. Herbine cures it. Take it before the disease gets a fair hold, though it will work a cure in any stage. J. A. Hopkins, Manchester, Kan., writes: "I have used your great medicine, Herbine, for several years. There is nothing better for malaria, chills and fever, headache, biliousness, and for a blood-purifying tonic, there is nothing as good." 50c at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

ONLY A FIT.

J. G. Willis, a farmer of Unionville, Ill., had a fit at the city scales this morning and created much excitement in that locality until the nature of his illness was learned. The farmers thought he was dying and were so excited that they hardly knew what to do. A physician was called and soon brought Willis around.

ALL WERE PLEASED

At the Cross Roads Delights a Fairly Large Audience.

Miss Adelaide Mann, a Paducah Girl, Was in the Cast.

"At the Cross Roads," that pretty story of love, life and tragedy, was witnessed by a well pleased audience at The Kentucky last night. It is not often that such a uniformly good company is seen here, and to say that it gave satisfaction would be putting it too mildly. "At the Cross Roads" had been seen here before, and that is one reason it had a larger house this time than last. The story is pathetic but has a happy ending. There is a vein of comedy running through it which varies the scenes and dialogues, and one of the most delightful and natural characters is the frank, open gambler, "Dock," who at once wins the hearts of his audience. Estha Williams as "Parepa" the woman whose life has been ruined because she thought she was an octoroon, but who finally proves to be a white woman, did admirable work, and won applause every bit of which she earned. Miss Gertrude O'Malley, as "Annabel," daughter of Parepa, proved herself an artist in all her work, especially her emotional parts. It was not the first time that Miss O'Malley won the plaudits of a Paducah audience, having been here last season with Walker Whitesides. Miss Adelaide Mann, as "Madge Thornton," is a Paducah girl, but it was not generally known. Her father was superintendent of the railroad here a number of years ago, but subsequently went to New Orleans. He is now one of the high officials of the B. and O. railroad. Miss Mann was seen here last year with Murray and Mack.

Mr. James Brophy is to be complimented for his fine work as "Dock." Mr. Charles D. Coburn, as "Tom Martin," also did well, and Miss Louise Vallentine delighted everybody with her impersonation of "Young Mississippi," the negro boy. She is an excellent dancer. Mrs. Charles G. Craig, as "Ole Aunt Eliza," was a pleasant reproduction of the big, waddling, colored auntie. Harry F. Dunkinson, first the tramp and later the "Count," did good work, and the support was fine. In fact it is a first class production, and the play is one that leaves a lasting impression. The Bachelor Quartette was a feature of the performance. It seemed to be a little out of tune last night, but this may have been the fault of the spectators' ears.

ALL ARRESTED

A "Whiskey Boat" From Evansville Caught in Mississippi.

Owners Fired into a Posse and All Are Now in Jail.

A shantyboat that passed Paducah a short time ago and attracted some little attention has met with something of a set back at Vicksburg, Miss. A dispatch says:

A sheriff's posse, re-enforced by a Gatling gun squad, late this afternoon effected the capture of W. G. Hull, his son, R. G. Hull, and his daughter, Mrs. Vaughan, of Arkansas. They were aboard the shantyboat Hazel, also said to be a whiskey boat, from which the shots were fired on Sheriff Frank Strong and posse, of Chicot county, Ark., yesterday, resulting in the wounding of the sheriff and three of his men.

The elder Hull made a statement that he had no idea he was firing on officers of the law yesterday. He says a squad of men, both white and black, appeared on the shore and opened a fusillade without warning. His son was wounded in the arm, and, believing his family to be in jeopardy, he seized his rifle and returned the fire.

The men were brought to Vicksburg and were immediately sent to Jackson for safety, as reports are current that a mob is on its way from Arkansas to lynch them.

The Hazel hails from Evansville, Ind., and is owned by Gregg Hull and Son.

HELD TO ANSWER.

Lindo Murphy and Emmet Neilly of Mayfield, charged with bootlegging, were tried before Commissioner Garner yesterday and held to answer.

NOTHING LIKE

Paine's Celery Compound

FOR CLEANSING AND PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It Removes the Germs of Disease, Invigorates and Rejuvenates.

Thousands of men and women who have neglected the work of physical recuperation in the summer months are now carrying a burden of disease. In the majority of cases impure and poisoned blood and a sluggish circulation are the direct causes of suffering and misery. Are you, dear reader, one of the unhappy victims? If so, the life stream must be made pure, the health-wrecking laxity of the bloodvessels must be corrected, the nerves and tissues must be nourished. Paine's Celery Compound is the medicine that physicians recommend for the increase of pure blood in the arteries, and for arousing the purifying organs to cast off the impurities that give rise to disease. Mr. Jas. F. Hudson, Spring Ridge, La., was a terrible sufferer from impure blood; he tells how he banished his troubles: "From some cause my blood became impure and resulted in boils and pimples. At one time I suffered from twenty-seven boils. No one can imagine what I suffered. I tried sulphur, sarsaparilla and other remedies, but no relief came. Mr. Sebastian, a merchant whom I used to clerk for, handed me one of your circulars and insisted that I should use Paine's Celery Compound. After using two or three bottles the boils were not so numerous nor as large. After using the fifth bottle I was entirely cured, and have been myself ever since."

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

A CITIZEN OF PADUCAH PAYS A WELL EARNED TRIBUTE.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mr. T. G. Eller of 1801 Monroe street, carpenter at Illinois Central railroad, says: "A friend of mine who had procured Doan's Kidney Pills at DuBois and Co.'s drug store and used them in his family recommended them so highly that I gave a little girl of ours, 10 years of age, a course of the treatment. We had given her so much medicine for kidney weakness that she absolutely refused to take anything, but finally coaxing succeeded. Before she completed two boxes we stopped using the remedy, because she no longer required it."

MASONS IN SESSION

The Grand Lodge Convened Today at 10 O'clock at Louisville.

It is the 103rd Session—Many Noted Masons Are in Attendance—Important Meeting.

HONOR FOR MR. J. W. LANDRUM

Louisville, Oct. 1.—The grand lodge of Kentucky Masons began its sessions here today at 10 a. m.

A. L. 5992.
A. L. 2423.
A. Dep. 2902.

To the uninitiated—the word is used advisedly—these letters and numerals are so much Greek, but in them the membership of the three bodies of Masonry in Kentucky—Grand Lodge, Grand Chapter and Grand Council—which meet here this week, find precepts for much of the faith that is in them.

To the ancient craft Masons, the year of light, coming 4,000 years before the dawn of the vulgar era, holds much that is sacred, while in the year of discovery, 3470 years after, the Royal Arch Masons see a deal to be thankful for. Royal and Select Masters look to the year of the deposit, an even thousand years before the vulgar era, as the beginning of all that is important to them. Thus Masons recognize in the dates the age of each belief.

This fourth week of October, A. D. 1902, finds the Kentucky representatives of three Masonic bodies meeting in Louisville—the Grand Lodge, the largest of the trio—in 103d annual communication.

Last night between 6 and 8 o'clock, the Masonic veterans gave their annual dinner. This is an association composed of Masons who have been in the order 21 years or more. The dinners are always interesting events.

Tonight the Grand Chapter will meet at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, and will conclude its work on Wednesday evening, it having only night sessions. At the meeting tonight handsome jewels will be presented the following past grand high priests:

- 1859—Thomas Todd, Shelbyville.
- 1870—Henry Bostwick, Covington.
- 1872—William Ryan, Louisville.
- 1873—David P. Robb, Versailles.
- 1876—James W. Staton, Brooksville.
- 1879—John H. Leathers, Louisville.
- 1880—W. La Rue Thomas, Maysville.
- 1882—Howard R. French, Mt. Sterling.
- 1884—Charles E. Dunn, Louisville.
- 1885—Bernard G. Witt, Henderson.
- 1887—J. Soule Smith, Lexington.
- 1888—Henry G. Sandifer, Danville.
- 1889—Henry G. Grant, Louisville.
- 1890—Joshua D. Powers, Owensboro.
- 1891—Charles H. Fisk, Covington.
- 1895—John G. Orndorff, Russellville.
- 1897—James W. Hopper, Louisville.
- 1898—William R. Johnson, Chicago, Ill.
- 1900—Hal T. Jefferson, Louisville.
- 1901—Edward C. Sellers, Covington.

The date before each name is the year of election to office.

Mr. John W. Landrum, of Mayfield, who is at Seelbach's hotel will attain the eminence of grand master and grand high priest at this session of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter. Others who have had this honor conferred on them the same year are:

- 1880—W. Larue Thomas, Maysville.
- 1885—B. G. Witt, Henderson.
- 1887—Soule Smith, Lexington.
- Mr. Landrum's father, Dr. J. D. Landrum, a past grand master himself, will install his son.
- The chief interest in new officers will, as usual, center in the grand junior warden's chair. Among those who will be placed in nomination are: Messrs. Lewis McCarthey, Maysville; S. T. Veech, Carlisle; Robert Barnham, Richmond.

DAILY THOUGHT.

Education is the reserve power of every man.—Success.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and Wednesday warmer.

A football student at Hartford, Conn., escaped with a broken back recently. He was evidently unfitted for the game, however, as he died.

We move that the Memphis Commercial-Appeal fire that long-winded reporter who begins, "It was a Sunday afternoon." It is entirely too much trouble to boil down his stuff
when we want to use it.

The race riot in which so many were killed and injured in Littleton, Ala., turned out to have been a free-for-all fight in which one man indiscreetly died with his boots on.
Such is modern journalism in big cities.

Colonel Edward Butler, millionaire and politician, has been indicted at St. Louis for bribery in connection with the boudling cases that have agitated the Future Great and stirred up the whole country, for the past several weeks.

"It was bound to come in time. The cases against Justus Goebel charged with securing public offices for friends and collecting a part of the salary, have been dismissed. No effort was ever made to get him here for trial, and it was known when he was indicted that he would never have to stand trial for the alleged offenses.

The manner in which the state

The great majority of buyers are compelled, because of the limitations of their incomes, to study the buying power of a dollar. It is not so much a spirit of economy as one of necessity. Hence the majority of readers of newspapers are attracted most by those advertisements which state distinctly the price at which articles that are described may be bought.
It is not enough that the advertiser says they are "dirt cheap," or that he sells
"cheaper than anybody else."
The would-be buyer prefers to judge for himself whether the goods are reasonable in price, and the only way to determine is to see the prices at which they are offered.

has been gouging every railroad and everything else that dares to show itself within our borders has begun to attract attention elsewhere, and a Cincinnati paper recently severely arraigned the administration for collecting franchise tax in Kentucky from a local corporation that is assessed on its franchise in Cincinnati. If the grafters at Frankfort keep it up we shall in time be without anything except a few second class corporations. The officials are not satisfied with collecting about a dozen different kinds of taxes off everything in the state, but now have their agents filing suits to recover every conceivable kind of tax that is unjust and foolish, off people and corporations from 1893 until the present time. They even have the nerve these state agents have, to try to collect back city taxes.
Next thing we know they will want to collect the house rent and gas bill.

The public should deal gently with our Fourth street contemporary, whose philanthropic work in distributing $1.50 convict-made chairs at $2.25
each to the public is widely known, because it has no opinions to express on local topics of general interest.
Our twilight competitor, to tell the truth, doesn't know anything about what's going on in Paducah, and hence discreetly refrains from saying anything. Two times it made a bluff. One was when it called attention to the danger of our ice harbor from the washing away of the island opposite the city. It was shown by the Sun, that our ice harbor was three miles above the vanishing island and when the government engineer passed the other day and did not seem alarmed for Paducah's future, no further "opinions" were ventured by our esteemed opponent. Another time it did take sides in the cow election, but after working up its 127 readers to a frenzy over the election it gave the wrong date, and when they went to vote they found they were a day late. Do not, dear public, hurt the cripple.

The people should not lose sight of two important matters that they are to vote on at the approaching election, the issue of $100,000 bonds to make substantial improvements in the streets and the authority to the council to make a 21 year contract with the water company for hydrant rental at a uniform and permanent rate of $25 a year for each hydrant. Should the first question carry, the city will be in a position to improve her principal streets right, and should the last, to secure a filtration plant that will cost $100,000 and give the city clear water the year around. We have clear water now only when the river is low. These two questions, in addition to the various candidates, are to be voted on by the people at the approaching election, and should not be forgotten. It is very necessary that everybody vote, for to defeat either proposition would be very unfortunate for the best interests of the city. The bonds are not a tax, and will not have to be paid by this generation. In fact the saving to the city of money that is now spent on street improvement will amount each year to more than enough to pay the interest and sinking fund, and when the bonds fall due there will be enough money in the sinking fund, as required by law, to pay them,
and no one will have been perceptibly taxed to do it.

—John Davis, age 24, and Rita Carter, of the city, age 28, colored, were today licensed to wed. It will make the first marriage of the groom and the second of the bride.

Taking in All the Sights.

An Iowa judge and his daughter were among the callers on Mayor Low of New York the other day. In the course of a chat with Mr. Low the young woman said artlessly: "We are here to see the sights, and so we called on you." The mayor's habit-ual poise was somewhat shaken for a moment, but he saw that the remark was intended as a compliment and bowed his thanks.

A Welcome for Everybody.

"Yachters in sweaters, flannels and other holiday attire will be welcome, and there is plenty of accommodation for cycles," states an invitation to service issued by a Nonconformist church in Norfolk.

NEWS AT BROOKPORT

A New Bank is one of the Probabili-ties of the Near Future.

Wife of a Former Engineer at New Liberty Follows Her Husband to the Grave.

NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

Brookport, Ill., Oct. 21—Brookport is to have a bank in the near future.
All necessary arrangements are expected to be completed by the 1st of January.

Mr. Clarence Clarkson, moderately well known both here and in Paducah, created quite a sensation here Thursday. He entered Williams' barber shop to have a shave and was stricken with a severe attack of heart failure.
Before relatives reached him he had professed religion and said he never felt better in his life. When his mother arrived and was informed of the good news she demonstrated her joy
by shouting, clapping her hands, etc., during which the barber chair and various articles of furniture were overturned, the noise of which caused quite a crowd to collect. Mr. Clarkson then went on his way homeward rejoicing, while Barber Williams proceeded to arrange his disordered furniture.

Work in our factory district is progressing nicely. Mr. O. H. Margrave, the lumber man, is doing the sawing of the timber for the construction of the Leonard wagon and buggy factory, the building of which is being pushed forward rapidly. The hoop factory, owned by the Whitney Bros., is turning out an abundance of work. It is also reported that Brookport is to have another railroad soon.

A Republican speaking will be held in the hall above Bagley Bros.' blacksmith shop Thursday evening. Judge Bun. O. Jones, Attorney Douglas
Helm, Mr. W. A. Spence, Attorney Fred R. Young and others are on the program.

Brookport schools are progressing finely this year under the management of Prof. A. L. Whittenberg. Quite a large class will graduate from the High school this year.

Mrs. Bob Johnson, wife of the engineer who was killed in the recent explosion of the sawmill at New Liberty, died Sunday at 4 o'clock a. m.
of malarial fever.

The Paducah Sun is quite popular in Brookport. Brookport people know a good thing when they see it.

Mr. F. B. Leonard, the factory man, has moved his family to Metropolis.

Mrs. B. B. Linn of Paducah is visiting Mr. A. H. Utterback and family.

Brookport has quite a number of cases of la grippe and typhoid fever.

Yale's Oldest Living Graduate.
Rev. Joseph S. Lord of Laingsburg, Mich., who is believed to be the oldest graduate of Yale, has received the following letter from President Hadley of that institution: "My Dear Sir: In behalf of Yale university I am giving myself the pleasure of sending felicitations to its oldest living graduate on the completion of his ninety-fourth year. Faithfully yours, Arthur T.
Hadley." Mr. Lord entered Yale in 1827 and graduated in 1831.

Editor's Good Fortune.

"The editor had fried chicken for dinner Thursday," says C. F. Riding in the Hamilton (Mo.) Farmers' Advocate, "but now don't jump at the conclusion that we have lost our head or spent a whole year's income on one dinner. We have a neighbor who raises chickens and who believes in the 'Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man,' hence our good fortune."

How Do You Make a Circle?

The intelligence of people may be gauged by asking them to make a circle on paper with a pencil and noting in which direction the hands moved. The good student in a mathematical class draws circles from left to right. The inferiority of the softer sex as well as the male dunces is shown by their drawing from right to left. Asylum patients do the same.—London Family Doctor.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Oct. 31.—A negro, name unknown, went to a white lady's house near Eastabuchie, a short distance north of this city, last Saturday and attempted an assault upon her, but the yard dog drove him off. MARRIED AT FULTON

Young Man of Paducah and Young Lady of Mayfield Married.

A Joke on One Young Man Who Is Not to Be Married At All.

Mr. Ole Allen, a well known young harness maker of the city, and Miss Mollie Jones, of Mayfield, eloped to Fulton Monday morning at 4 o'clock and were married, returning to this city last night at 8 o'clock on the local freight.

Mr. Allen left Paducah for Mayfield Sunday night at 6:10 and went to call on the young lady, who is a step-daughter of Mr. A. N. Mason, the operator of the Mayfield Foundry and Machine Co. They left that night on the early morning passenger train for Fulton and were married immediately upon securing a minister. The match was an elopement although that young lady's mother had been apprised of the intended action. The bride and groom are now making Paducah their home and will receive the congratulations of their many friends here.

Friends of Mr. Campbell Jarvis say the publication in a morning paper of his approaching marriage was a joke. A short time ago a young man at the Illinois Central shops left town on a visit and Mr. Jarvis and others gave it out that he was to marry. When he came home and learned of the joke he decided to get even, and as a result Mr. Jarvis was surprised to learn today that he was to meet a young lady of Waco, Tex., in Memphis and marry.

Mr. Edward Pierson, an employee of the furniture company, and Miss Odie Wilkins of Benton, Marshall county, were married yesterday and arrived last evening to take up their residence on South Third.

—Mrs. Jesse Gilbert, wife of the well known attorney, is ill at her home on South Seventh street.

—Will Lindsey was arrested this afternoon by officers Clark and Harlan for a breach of the peace.

READY, START!

AN ATHLETIC EVENT.

You want, everybody wants, brain and muscle, wind and stamina, and can get them if fed properly. This is an athletic age. The man or woman who is weak or sickly is not in the race; success socially or in business goes only to the strong and healthy. It is largely a matter of choice with anyone, for proper living and proper food will bring the prize.

An athlete in Chicago tells of the good results he obtained from proper food; he says: "Last spring I began to train hard to become an athlete in track events and to grow stronger; I now know that what strength and victories I have secured is due to the use of Grape-Nuts. When in training for an athletic meet I would just live on Grape-Nuts alone for three days before the event was to come off. During this time I have won six championship races out of two athletic meets. In a 300 yard run my time was 35 seconds and in the 75 yard dash the time was 9 seconds, both being a good record."

"Grape-Nuts has given me a stronger mind and also bodily strength which no other food could have done in so short a time. I have gained strength in a most remarkable way since using Grape-Nuts."

Members of our football team have a training table, on which may be found first of all the athlete's favor-

HUNTSVILLE'S AID TOWARD RAILWAY TO BIRMINGHAM AND COAL FIELDS.

Huntsville, Oct. 21.—Prominent local business men held a meeting tonight and took preliminary steps for the organization of a company to build a railway and wagon bridge across the Tennessee river near Whitesburg. A committee was appointed to perfect arrangements and call a subsequent meeting. The bridge will be erected mainly as an inducement to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company to build a road from Ocoona to Hobbs island, giving Huntsville direct connection with Birmingham and the Alabama coal fields. Those interested in the local enterprises will also see what can be done toward obtaining a right of way for the projected road.

CIRCUIT COURT

REVENUE AGENT APPEALS ONE OF THE TAX CASES.

There was little done in circuit court today other than the regular calling of the docket and setting of cases and only one judgment was filed.

In the case of E. Y. Ogilvie against F. V. Kimbrough and others, a judgment was filed correcting a deed.

Frank Lucas, revenue agent, took an appeal in the case against the Ayer and Lord Tie company which has now been taken to the circuit court. He brought suit to force the company to pay taxes on its boats and other marine property but Judge Lightfoot decided that the company had headquarters in Illinois and the property was taxable in that state and that no taxes could be taken by this state.

Mamie K. Wheeler to W. M. Moore.

Doubtful Compliment.

A Texan named A. W. Houston is among the candidates for congressional nomination in the lone star state. Mr. Houston has a very dark complexion—darker than the average mulatto. When in the state senate some time ago he delivered a splendid speech. An hour or so later he was passing down the street when a coal-black politician from a distant city approached and, grasping him by the hand, said: "Brother, you're a credit to the colored race, that's what you are."

Clerical Sarcasm.

The following church notice was recently exhibited: "The service on Sunday morning is at 11 a. m. The supposition that it is ten minutes later is a mistake. Young men are not excluded from the week-night service. The seats in the front portion of the church have been carefully examined. They are quite sound and may be trusted not to give way. It is quite legitimate to join in the singing. The object of the choir is to encourage, not discourage, the congregation."—Pearson's Week.

Boom in Africa.

South Africa is on the eve of the biggest business boom it has ever known, and altogether apart from booms or slumps the prosperity of the country will soon be established on a stable and permanent basis. Everywhere there is abundant scope for capital, brains and enterprise, and before very long the whole of South Africa, from Agulhas to the shores of Tanganyika will be given over to industry, to effort and to substantial achievement.—Durban Times of Natal.

Race Spirit of Boers.

The Boer leaders are exhorting their people to preserve the race spirit, writes a reporter for the New York Sun. At the same time they acknowledge frankly that South Africa is now under one flag. Why should not the Dutch keep up the traditions of their country, as Scotland, Wales and Ireland do? Anyhow, as matters now stand, no other colony has such a glorious past to point to as the former South African republics.

Owes Life to Pet Monkey.

A Paris monkey named Albert has recently figured in the role of life saver. A fire broke out in its mistress' house, and the monkey smelling the smoke and becoming alarmed, contrived to open a window, climb down a waterspout to the porter's lodge and give the alarm. The porter thereupon forced his way into the burning building and rescued the lady of the house from imminent suffocation.

Good Work of French Women.

A "Prize of Virtue" has been conferred by the French Academy on Mlle. Bonnefols, who has devoted her life to the education of the children who live in booths and caravans. She goes the round of all the great fairs and sets up her tent school among the shows and circuses, doing an immense amount of good. She is very popular among her rough clients, young and old.

Went Too Close to Danger.

One of the victims of the St. Pierre disaster was a French painter, Paul Merwert, who was at Martinique on an artistic mission from the government. He ascended to the crater of Mont Pelee as late as April 28.

Arms and The Woman

By Harold MacGrath

Copyright, 1900,
By Harold MacGrath.

"Yes, indeed," I replied. To have loved and lost, and such a woman, was my thought.

"The new tenor is an improvement. Do you not think so?"

"Yes, indeed." No more to touch her hand, to hear her voice, to wait upon her wishes.

"It was the most brilliant audience of the season."

"Yes, indeed," I murmured. Those were the only words I could articulate. The carriage rumbled on.

"Does Patti return in the fall?"

"Yes." Five years of dreaming and then to awake!

And then the carriage mercifully stopped.

Mrs. Wentworth insisted that I should enter and have some coffee. I had so few words at my command that I could not invent even a flimsy excuse. So I went in. The coffee was tasteless. I put in four lumps of sugar. I stirred and stirred and stirred. Finally I swallowed the contents of the cup. It was very hot. When the agony was past, I rose and made my adieu.

Phyllis came to the door with me.

"Forget what I have said," I began, fumbling the doorknob. "I suppose I warmed my veins my thoughts took a philosophical turn. It is fate who writes the was, the is and the shall be. We have a proverb for every joy and misfortune. It is the only consolation fate gives us. It is like a conqueror asking the vanquished to witness the looting. All roads lead to Rome, and all proverbs are merely signposts by which we pursue our destinies. And how was I to get to Rome? I knew not. Hope is better than clairvoyance.

Was Phyllis right when she said that I did not truly love her? I believed not. Should I go on loving her all my life? Undoubtedly I should. As to effinities, I had met mine, but it had proved a one-sided affair.

It was after 10 by the clock when I remembered that I was to meet the lawyer, the arbiter of my new fortunes. Money is a balm for most things, and coupled with travel it might lead me to forget. He was the family lawyer, and he had come all the way north to see that I received my uncle's bequest. He was bent, gray and partially bald. He must have been close to 70, but for all that there was a youthful twinkle in his eyes as he took my card and looked up into my face.

"So you are John Winthrop?" he said in way of preliminary. You may hand a cardcase full of your name to a lawyer and still he will insist upon a verbal admission.

"I have always been led to believe so," I answered smartly, placing my hat beside the chair in which I sat down. "How did you manage to locate me in this big city?"

"Your uncle had seen some of your signed articles in New York papers and said that in all probability I should find you here. A few inquiries set me on your track." Here he pulled out a lengthy document from his handbag. "I confess, however," he added, "that I am somewhat disappointed in your looks."

"Disappointed in my looks?" was my cry. "What sort of a dufer were you expecting to see?"

He laughed. "Well, your uncle gave me the idea that I should find a good for nothing hack writer, a dabbler in some obscure garret."

"If that is the case, what a relief the sun did send you up here for!"

The merriment went out of the old man's face, and his eyes became grave. "Of that anon. Let me proceed with my business and read the will to you. You will find it rather a remarkable document."

I settled back in my chair in a waiting attitude. To tell the truth, I was somewhat confused by all this preamble. To his son my uncle left the bulk of his property, which amounted to more than $1,000,000. I was listless. The head overseer received the munificent sum of $50,000. To the butler, the housekeeper and the cook he gave $10,000 each. I began to grow interested. He was very liberal to his servants. Several other names were read, and my interest assumed the color of anxiety. When the lawyer stopped to unfold the last flap, I spoke.

"And where in the world do I come in?"

"In the sense you understand you do not come in."

I stared at him in amazement. "I don't come in?" I repeated vaguely.

"Ah," reaching down for my hat, "then I go out, as it were, as brilliant as a London yellow fog. What the devil does all this mean?" I started to rise.

"Wait!" he commanded. "To my nephew, John Winthrop, I bequeath the sum of $1,000, to be presented to him in person immediately after this will is probated and with the understanding that he shall make no further demand upon my son and heir in the future." That is all," concluded the lawyer, folding the document. "I have the check in my pocket."

"Keep it," said I, rising. A hot flush of indignation swept over me. I understood. It was his revenge. To have a man make sport of you after he is dead and gone, leaving you impotent and with never a chance to retaliate! "Keep it," I said again; "throw it away, or burn it. I understand. He has satisfied a petty revenge. It is an insult not only to me, but to my dead parents. You are, of course, acquainted with the circumstances of my mother's marriage. She married the man she loved, disregarding her brother's wishes."

"I knew your mother," said the lawyer, going to the window and looking out and beyond all that met his gaze.

"To think," I went on, cooling none, "that my mother's brother should die in this manner nourishing so small and petty a spite! When he did this, he knew that I should understand his motive. In the first place, I never dreamed that he would remember me in his will—never entertained the least idea of it. I am independent; I am earning a livelihood, small, but enough and to spare. I'll bid you good morning!" I took a step toward the door.

"Young man, sit down," said the old man, coming back to his chair. "I want to talk to you for a few minutes. Your uncle was a peculiarly vindictive man. What he considered a wrong he neither forgot nor forgave. His son pleaded with him not to put in that final clause. He offered even to share with you. Your uncle swore he would leave it all to the stablemen first. This

CHAPTER II.

In my bedroom the next morning there was a sad and heavy heart. The owner woke up, stared at the ceiling, then at the sun baked bricks beyond his window. He saw not the glory of the sun and the heavens. To his eyes there was nothing poetic in the flash of the distant church spires against the billowy cloud banks. The gray doves, circling about the chimneys, did not inspire him nor the twittering of the sparrows on the window ledge. There was nothing at all in the world but a long stretch of barren, lonely years. And he wondered how without her at his side he ever could traverse them. He was driftwood again. He had built upon sands as usual, and the tide had come in; his castle was flotsam and jetsam. He was drifting, and he didn't care where. He was very sorry for himself, and he had the blue devils the worst kind of way. Finally he crawled out of bed and dressed because it had to be done. He was not particularly painstaking with the procedure. It mattered not what collar became him best, and he picked up a tie at random. A man generally dresses for a certain woman's approval, and when that is no longer to be gained he grows indifferent. The other women do not count.

My breakfast consisted of a cup of coffee, and as the generous nectar journey was forced upon me, or I should not have taken it. This is my advice to you: Accept the check and in the privacy of your room tear it up or light a cigar with it; that's about all it's worth. You will feel no little satisfaction in lighting a cigar with it—that is, if you are anything like me. Think of it—a thousand dollars to light your cigar! It is an opportunity not to be missed. When you grow old, you will say to your grandchildren, 'Once I lit a cigar with a thousand dollar check.' The oldest inhabitant will be silenced forever. It may become history. And then, too, if there are spirits, as Scripture says there are, your uncle will write at the performance. I trust that you will forgive me my part in the matter. I have taken a fancy to you, and if you will accept my friendship I shall be happy to accept yours. Your uncle's revenge will not be a marker to the restitution his son will make."

"Restitution! His son?"

"Yes. To my sincere regret he is an invalid who may or may not live the year out. He has already made a will in which he leaves all to you. The will is in my safe at home. I return tonight, so I may not see you again in this world of sin and tribulation." The merry twinkle had returned to his eyes. "I am very old."

"It is worth all the trouble to have met you," said I. "You should have made the job very easy."

So we shook hands, and he gave me a cigar, around which was wrapped the check. He winked; then he laughed, and I joined him, though my laughter resembled mirth less than it did the cackle of a hen which was disturbed over the future of her brood. I left him and went down into the winerom and ordered a stiff brandy and soda. When that disappeared, I ordered another. I rattled the ice in the glass. "Ha, ha, ha!" I roared as the events of the past 24 hours recurred to me. There must have been a suicidal accent to my laughter, for the bartender looked at me with some concern. I called for another brandy and shot the soda into it myself. I watched the foam evaporate. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Hard luck!" the bartender asked sympathetically.

"Yes," said I. I seemed to be speaking to several bartenders who looked at me with several varieties of compassion.

"Have another on me," said the bartender.

I had another and went out into the street. I walked down Broadway, chuckling to myself. What a glorious farce it all was! My fortune! Phyllis my wife! What if she had accepted me? I laughed aloud, and people turned and stared at me. Oh, yes! I was to travel and write novels and have my pictures in book reviews and all that! When I arrived at the office, I was on the verge of total insanity. I was obliged to ask the paragrapher to write my next day's leader. It was night before I became rational, and once that, the whole world donned cap and bells and began capering for my express benefit. The more I thought of it the more I laughed. What a whimsical world it was! And was there anything in it so grotesque as my part? I took the check from my pocket and cracked it between my fingers. A cigar was in my mouth. Should I light it with the check? It was for $1,000. After all it was more than I had ever before held in my hand at once. But what was a paltry thousand, aye, a paltry ten thousand, to a man's pride? I bit off the end of my cigar, cranked the check into a taper and struck a match. I watched it burn and burn. I struck another. I held it within an inch of the check, but for the life of me I could not light it.

"The devil take it!" I cried. I flung the cigar out of the window and laid the check on my desk. Courage? Why, it needed the courage of a millionaire to light a cigar with a $1,000 check!

The office boy, who came in then, was salvation. The managing editor wanted to see me. I sprang up with alacrity. Anything but the sight of that figure 1 and the three demon eyes of that $1,000 check!

"Winthrop," said the managing editor to me as I entered his office, "you've got to go to London. Hillars has gone under."

"Not dead?" I cried.

"No, no! He has had to give up work temporarily on account of drink. If it was any other man, I'd throw him over in short order. But I feel sorry for Hillars, and I am going to give him another chance. I want you to go over and take care of him if possible. The London work is not new to you. You can handle that and Hillars too. If you can keep him in check!"

I shuddered. The word "check" jarred on my nerves.

"What's the matter?" asked the editor.

"A temporary chill," I said. "Go on."

"Well, if you can manage to keep him in check for a month or so, he'll be able to get on his feet again. And it will be like a vacation to you. If anything happens to Hillars, you will be expected to remain permanently abroad. Hillars suggested you in his letter. Will you be ready to go next Monday?"

"Tomorrow, if you like," I answered readily enough.

I was much pleased with the turn of events. If I could get away from New York, I might forget Phyllis—no, not forget her; I loved her too well ever to forget her, but the prolonged absence would cure me of my malady.

Before going to bed that night I lit a cigar, but not with the check. On sober second thought I calculated that the sum would pay up all my debts and leave me a comfortable margin. A man can well pocket his pride when he pockets a thousand dollars with it. And why not? I was about to start life anew and might as well begin on a philosophical basis. Who knew but my uncle had foreseen the result of his bequest; my rage, my pride, and finally lighting a cigar with his check? It really might make his spirit writhe to better effect if I became benefited. Sober second thought is more or less a profitable investment.

On the morrow everything was arranged for my departure. I was to leave Saturday morning.

It was a beautiful day, crisp and clear, with a bare ground which rang to the heel. In the afternoon I wandered over to the park and sat down on a bench and watched the skaters as they glided to and fro. I caught myself wishing that I was a boy again, with an hour's romp on the sheeny crust in view. Gradually the mantle of peace fell upon me, and there was a sense of rest. I was going to forgive the world the wrong it had done me. Perhaps it would feel ashamed of itself and reward me for my patience. So Hillars was "going to pieces." It is strange how we men love another who has shared and spent with us our late patrimonies. Hillars and I had been friends since our youth, and we had lived together till a few years back. Then he went to Washington, from there to Paris, thence to London. He was a better newspaper man than I. I liked to dream too well, while he was always for a little action. Liquor was getting the best of him. I wondered why. It might be a woman. There is always one around somewhere when a man's breath smells of whisky. A good deal of this woman's temperance business is caused by remorse. I was drawing aimless pictures in the frozen gravel when I became aware that two skaters had stopped in front of me. I glanced up and saw Phyllis and Ethel, their eyes like stars and their cheeks like roses.

"I was wondering if it were you," said Ethel. "Phyllis, where is my cavalier?"

"I believe he has forsaken us," said the voice of the woman I loved.

"Will you not accept part of the bench?" I asked, moving along.

The girls dropped easily beside me.

"I was just wishing I was a boy again and was in for a game of hockey," said I. "I am going to London on Saturday. Our foreign correspondent has had to give up work on account of ill health."

"You haven't?" Phyllis stopped suddenly.

"Oh, no!" said I intuitively. "I am growing rusty, and they think I need a vacation." I was glad Ethel was there, with her voluble chatter.

"Oh, a foreign correspondent!" she cried.

"Yes."

"You will have a glorious time. Papa will probably return to B. when the next administration comes in. You know papa was there 20 years ago. I suppose you will be hobnobbing with dukes and princes."

"It cannot be avoided," I said gravely. "I do not expect to remain long in London. When my work is done, perhaps I shall travel and complete my foreign polish."

"Oh, yes!" said Phyllis. "I forgot to tell you, Ethel, that a fortune has been left to Jack, and he need not work but for the love of it."

I laughed, but they thought it a self-conscious laugh. Somehow I was not equal to the task of enlightening them.

"It is jolly to be rich," said Ethel, clicking her skates together. "It's a bother at times, however, to know what to do with the money. I buy so many things I do not need just because I feel compelled to spend my allowance."

"It must be very inconvenient," I observed.

"And now that you are a man of leisure," said Phyllis, "you will write that book you have always been telling me about?"

"Do you wish it?" I asked.

"I do. What I have always found lacking in you is application. You start out to accomplish something, you find an obstacle in your path, and you do not surmount it. You do not persevere."

My pulse beat quickly. Was there a double-meaning to what she said? I could not tell, for her eyes remained averted.

I sighed. "It would be nice to become a successful author, but when a man is as rich as I am, fame tarnishes." I took out an envelope from my pocket.

"What is that?" asked Phyllis.

I turned over the back and showed it to her.

"Figures!" she laughed. "What do they mean?"

"It is what I am going to do with my fortune," said I. I was holding out my vanity at arm's length and laughing at it silently.

"Your air castles will be realized now," said Phyllis.

"I shall build no more," said I. "The last one gave me a very bad fall."

Phyllis looked away again. A vague perfume from her hair wafted past my nostrils, and for a space I was overwhelmed with sadness. Soon I discerned Mr. Holland speeding toward us.

"I shall not see you again," I said, "so I'll bid you goodbye now. If you should chance to come abroad this summer, do not fail to look me up."

"Good luck to you," said Ethel, shaking my hand. "You must bring home a princess or a duchess." Then she moved off a way, thoughtfully.

RELIC OF WAR.

CAPT. JOE FOWLER RECEIVES PICTURE OF HIS BROTHER'S GUNBOAT.

Captain Joe Fowler today received a memento of the civil war in the shape of a picture of the "Little Rebel," a Confederate gunboat his brother, Captain J. White Fowler, commanded during the civil war.

The picture is in pencil, and was sent by J. J. McGinnis, who was a cabin boy on her.

The little craft received a broadside from a Federal gunboat near Memphis and there was scarcely anything left of her.

Captain Fowler swam ashore, but had to dive constantly to dodge the musket balls. He finally reached the Arkansas side.

McGinnis, the former cabin boy, recently wrote Captain Fowler and asked if the former commander was still alive and following a reply came the picture, which Captain Joe prizes very highly.
